

Project description

Ceramic Commons is a series of non-profit simultaneous collaborative exhibitions of 3D printed ceramics in venues around the world.

The exhibition will promote and celebrate the diversity of practice within ceramic 3D printing, as well as the idea of “commons”.

We would like to highlight one of the exciting aspects of working with digital ceramics - sending ceramic work by e-mail. The files will be shared with exhibition collaborators. The sharing of ideas and knowledge through this methodology will generate dialogue on new ways of working with clay.

The exhibition will contain work from artists working with a ceramic extrusion printer and the expected size for the exhibition will be around 10 pieces.

Ceramic Commons will maintain online presence documenting the 3D printed iterations of the work in the various venues.